Citizens Turn Out And Aid Red Cross Sports On Monday

The postponed Board of Trade Sports were held on Monday, June 22. A very good crowd turned out to watch and take part in the various games and contests.

The school children's jumping and racing events were all run off during the morning. Eight school softball teams were entered. Two of the teams being made up of two schools combining.

The Albert school won first place in the finals against Battle Heights.

In the olderboys' and men's games, Orindale defeated Irma 5-11, Irma high school won from Fabyan 11-5, and Orindale beat Silver Lane 9-4. Irma high and Orindale then played the final, Irma winning 10-9.

Two hardball teams were recruited from among players from various parts of the Irma district for one game, which was enjoyed by all. These games were all well played and made a very good afternoon and evening program. The weather was very fine for a sports day, and although the attendance was not as large as in former years, under the circumstances it was considered very fair.

The dance in Keifer's hall drew a large crowd who thoroughly enjoyed the music by Coulman's orchestra.

Winner in the racing and jumping events are as follows:

A Growing War Effort

SOME INTERESTING figures regarding the returns to the Dominion treasury through the channels of direct taxation were recently given to the House of Commons by Finance Minister J. L. Hiley. The increase to the national revenue from these taxes for the year ending May 31, 1942, was $347,200,000. Mr. Hiley described this figure as "startlingly tremendous." He further stated that while this increase was due in part to an increase in the rate of taxation, an upward swing in general business conditions was also a factor. Analyzing this figure, Mr. Hiley showed that personal income tax for the year ending May 31, 1942, would show an increase of $105,100,000; national defence tax $86,900,000; and excess profit tax $155,200,000.

Trend Of Business

While production of luxury goods in Canada has been widely and rapidly curtailed, there has grown up a large defence industry, which is taking up great quantities of material and providing employment for large numbers of workers. In a recent survey of business conditions in Canada, published by the Bank of Nova Scotia, it was stated that employment in industrial plants had increased thirty per cent. in the last year, and sixty-two per cent. above the levels just prior to the outbreak of the war. The same report says that there was a material increase in gross farm income during the past year. Cash income from the sale of farm products during 1941 were placed at $876,000,000, an increase of 18½ per cent. over 1940, and the highest since 1929.

Increase Of Farm Products

Since the outbreak of the war farm living costs have increased five per cent. and the cost of production has risen. Nevertheless there has been an increase in the output of agricultural products to meet the rising requirements of war time. While returns to the farmers are not as great as the gross increase suggests, there has been improvement in some branches of the agricultural industry. The production of metals and forest products also show great increases, and these figures all tell the story of an ever-expanding war effort within our Dominion, which is yearly absorbing greater quantities of our material and human resources. Now that the initiative has been seized by the United Nations on most of the fighting fronts, it is to be hoped that the offensive spirit will gather strength. It should make itself felt by the renewed determination of all Canadians to provide the money necessary for the support of the men in uniform.

THE LAST WORD

When the building of the Erie Canal was being discussed, the subject of favoring it was being argued in a Quaker business meeting of men. It was opposed by an influential member—no less than Elias Hicks, celebrated American preacher—on the ground of its being a speculation. Among other objections he went on to say, "When the world was created, if any canals were intended they would have been made." Thereupon, a member rose up and in the intoning voice usually heard in the meetings, said, "And Jacob digged a well!" and sat down.

RATIONING AIDS HEALTH

Health tests in London show that rationing has improved rather than retarded the health of the average adult and child. This is ascribed to the careful planning that precedes all rationing decisions. More than 10,000 evacuees are weighed and measured every three months. Similar tests are applied to children in evacuation camps. The lessons learned will be put to practical use after the war.

Newspaper Statistics

35th Edition McKim's Directory Of Canadian Publications Just OF Press

Canada has now 1,811 publications, of which 953 are weeklies and 107 dailies, according to the 35th edition of McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications, just off the press.

During the past year, the dailies have decreased by five and the weeklies by 31, while 20 monthlies and 23 miscellaneous publications have been added to the list. Suspension of Canada's two Japanese dailies narrows the Japanese language press in this country to one weekly, while the Chinese continue to lead among the dailies in the total of 66 foreign language publications in 16 different tongues, with four dailies of their own, two in Toronto and two in British Columbia.

"Necessary curbs on consumption and the re-directing of productive capacities to the service of the war machine have necessitated a shift in emphasis which changes the nature rather than restricts the scope of advertising," says C. T. Pearce, President of A. McKim Limited, in his foreword to the directory, which comprises 483 pages, and includes exhaustive data on markets throughout the Dominion. "Those who, with their eyes on the post-war world, take the necessary steps to maintain and increase the goodwill created by constant advertising will find themselves in the best position to cope with circumstances when peace comes."

For Overseas Forces

Cry "Send Us Smokes" Helped By Gift Of 2,000,000 Cigarettes A total of two million cigarettes will be distributed among Canadians in land, sea and air forces now on active service overseas, as a gift from The Dods Medicine Company Limited, Toronto, maker of Dods' Kidney Pills.

This is understood to be one of the largest individual gifts of Canadian-made cigarettes to the Canadian Forces on active service overseas, and distribution will be carried out through the facilities of the Overseas League, (Canada) Tobacco Fund, Toronto.

From all parts of Canada money is collected and cigarettes sent to all branches of the service overseas at the rate of 16 packages of 25 cigarettes each for $1.00. With each package goes an addressed post card with the donor's name and hundreds of thousands have been returned to Canada and the United States by grateful men of the air force, navy, army and merchant marine. Any amount is acceptable and carefully administered by the Overseas League, Tobacco Fund, King Edward Hotel, Toronto. This is volunteer work and the Governor-General, Lord Athlone, is leading patron in Canada.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army. By Alma Maurice Irwin

"Canadians must supply more tanks, more guns, more men, more bombers, more rifles." You have heard public speakers reel these sentiments off time and again and audiences stamp and cheer and, let us hope, dash off to buy more War Savings Stamps and Victory Bonds.

Well, so long as the audience reacts that way why should anyone worry?

And yet there is a worry there. It's the grouping together of machines and men.

It's bad psychology. It illustrates too well the Colonel Blimp type of thinking.

What right has a politician to think of men—your son or brother or father or husband or sweetheart—in the same breath as machines?

We can sweat and sacrifice and save to "supply more tanks, more guns, more bombers, more rifles."

But it is not our sacrifice or our sweat when the men go. That is theirs and we have no right to be smug and complacent when they volunteer no matter how close we are to them or they to us.

You'll hear the same type of speaker say, "Mrs. Blank in my constituency has given two sons to the Army."

Mrs. Blank hasn't given her sons to the Army. They weren't hers to give. Let us rather say that Mrs. Blank gave her sons the character that made them ready to offer their services, perhaps their lives, to their country.

But don't let us class them with the masses that are being built to aid its soldiers by the Individual Citizen's Army!

The men who put on their country's uniform when that country is fighting for the existence of the Christian world do it for the same reason their fathers did. There is no burning fire of patriotism in them, no inward, silent thought of sacrifice, no proud thought of honour, no inroad call of duty. They put on the uniform because they are men and men fight to protect their own and preserve their heritage.

They don't get into uniform because politicians or preachers or judges or Colonel Blimps tell them it's their duty—neither should we who are not permitted to wear uniform need to be "needed up" to put our backs into backing the soldiers up.

"Not permitted to wear uniforms." But we are! we are permitted to wear uniforms of our own design and manufacture. We can wear uniforms represented by turned coats, by frayed cuffs, by lack of frills to save cloth for vital needs.

We can wear uniforms by walking to save gasoline, by abstaining from candy to save sugar, by wearing old clothes, eating plain food, by buying two War Savings Certificate stamps instead of going to a movie.

That way we can be privates in the Individual Citizen's Army—and it's a lot harder to be a good private than a good general.

That way we can supply the men in uniform with "more tanks, more guns, more bombers, more rifles." The farmer who patches up an old hoe, the housewife who makes over an old dress, the school-boy who walks sedately past a good slide to save wear and tear on his boots (or maybe the seats of his pants) is supplying more machines to the troops.

Those are the thoughtful people. What about the thoughtless ones?

To be thoughtless these days is to be unpatriotic—and to be unpatriotic these days is close to treachery.

Perhaps we should drop fancy language these days, perhaps we would better understand what harm thoughtlessness can do if we were to call a sugar hoarder a traitor, the man who convives to get a double-breasted suit a traitor, the joy-rider a traitor!

What do you think?

Wanted in Country

Streets In London May Soon Have No Custer Ponies

Costermongers' ponies, quick-stepping animals of 12 to 14 hands, soon may be a novelty on London streets. They are in demand by country residents who have laid up their automobiles and are travelling by traps and old-fashioned gigs. Before the war the ponies sold for approximately $120. Now they bring twice that and are becoming scarce.

One horse dealer said women in particular are buying the ponies because they are easy to handle and have a lot of "horse sense."

"ALL THAT GLITTERS"

— By —
ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXVI

Ransome thought he would never reach the junction on the highway where the Duck Point Rd. joined it. It was almost noon and the sun shone warmly down upon them.

The Duck Point Rd. was seldom travelled excepting for the tenants of a number of small farms that lay scattered about. It was surprising that any one could have landed a plane there and it not have been noticed. Ransome thought.

He found the mail box marked with the name of the man who had called him, and turned the car in the narrow road winding between moss-laden trees. Bird dogs and geese made great confusion as he stopped at the little front porch of the house. A tall, lanky man got up slowly from the stone steps.

"Reckon you're the one I talked to about the plane?"

"Yes," said Ransome, opening the car door. "This is Mr. Randolph, the girl's father, and Mr. Sheridan, a lawyer friend, Mr. Ransome."

The stranger looked them over, silently and then said, "Howdy. He turned back to Ransome.

"Can you take us to the field right now?"

"I'll git in with ye, and we can drive up to it. Jes' down the road a piece."

The field where they stopped had been planted in broom corn, and had been recently cut, and most of the soil turned under again. In one far corner they found marsh grass growing, and it seemed to be here the plane had been kept.

The brown grass was crushed down in a great sweeping path, and the men knew that it had happened when the plane used it as a runway.

"Whoever landed that plane must have known something about the place. There must have been a car waiting, and they must have tested this marsh grass to make sure that it wasn't too wet."

Dick Sheridan nodded. "You're right about that. No one could have just taken a chance on a thing like this unless it was a forced landing."

"The plane must have circled here, to take off into the wind," Ransome indicated a wide sweeping place in the crushed grass. Had Tamar been in that plane when it took off? Had the plane been left there to carry away the gold bars taken from the armored truck?

If there could only be some evidence! He looked hopefully about the place where he thought the plane must have stood. Car tracks were plainly visible. He exclaimed at the number. "Look! There's been more than one car here!" The tire treads were of a different design in the soft dirt.

"We had a light rain night before last," said Rawson. "Jes' nough to lay the dust. So they must be new tracks."

Dick threw open his arms in a hopeless gesture. "Chances are we're on a dead-end trail. This probably doesn't mean a thing."

"Well, I was flabbergasted to hear a plane out here in my own field," said Rawson. "It jes' ain't natcher. No one else ever landed out here. I walked over, but there's nothing I could do."

"No sign of a car?"

"No. I thought I heard one go by jes' fore I turned off our lane to go into the field, but I was walkin' and the bushes grow so high I couldn't see."

"Let's get to a telephone. I want to call Taylor and see if he can check for transient planes at the airports around. I think there's some connection, even if you don't, Dick," he said stubbornly. But he knew that he was clutching at faint hope. He couldn't give up; any clue must be traced until he was satisfied that it had nothing to do with the disappearance of Tamar.

Rawson told them the plane gained altitude so rapidly that he had no chance to see the size or kind. "But, phaw! I don't know enough about planes. I jes' knowed that was what it was. I ain't ever seed very many."

They would have to go to a nearby general store to call the FBI man, and started to get into the car. Suddenly Ransome's eyes caught the glint of something in the grass. He picked it up and turned it over in his hand. It was a circle of yellow gold that Tamar often wore to thrust her scarf through. Having been stepped upon, it was bent almost double.

Ransome in that moment felt the onrush of an anger that he had never experienced before. His fingers gripped the ring until it cut through and the red blood dripped down his hand.

Knox Randolph touched Ransome's arm. He took the gold ring from his own lifeless fingers. "Tamar's," he said through contorted lips.

As they rushed to the general store Ransome thought of the impossibilities of finding Tamar immediately. Where could they look?

Ransome talked with Taylor and then the men headed back for Shadwell. Perhaps some message had come for Randolph by this time. If they could only get in contact with them. No matter the ransom demand, Randolph had known that he would get the money together.

State troopers were at the junction when they turned into it. They stopped and showed identification cards. Two men went back to the field where the plane had been to guard it. "A network has been thrown up, Mr. Randolph. All highways are being patrolled. Word just came to us that the driver of the truck has been found."

"He didn't see the car that carried away the gold?" Ransome asked.

"No. No further clues."

Shadwell lay silent in the early afternoon sun. Even the noisy guineas which usually haunted the lane were absent today.

Ransome rang the bell as he hurried in. "Phoebe! Any messages?" Phoebe stopped on the threshold agast. What had happened to Miss?

Ranny? "No, sub, Miss' Ranny. Day ain' none come. Dat BIF man done call."

"Taylor?"

"Yassuh. He say yo' get in tech instantaneous," she plucked the telephone out of its cradle and handed it to him.

Taylor told Ranny that the armored truck driver stumbled into a filling station at Daybreak, about 25 miles out of Tablahneka.

"I'll be in your office right away. I want to see him."

Once more Ransome stepped into the car and started it.

"Wait, Ransome," said Knox. "I'll sit here by the telephone. Something might come in and maybe they wouldn't let any one take the message but me."

Ransome saw the trembling of his lips and knew that Tamar's father was a broken old man today.

The truck driver was of middle age. He looked pale and as though he had spent a sleepless night. His bloodshot eyes looked steadily into Ransome's as he told his story.

"I was detained at the mine. Purpose, of course, I see now. But at the time I thought nothing of it, excepting that it would make me late getting back. When I reached the foot of the hill leading to the junction, I was going pretty fast. Without warning, the wheels dropped off into the ditch that had been dug and covered over. Like an elephant trap, I know immediately what had happened so I just sat there, waiting for their first move."

Ransome asked impatiently. "And what was it?"

"A voice cried to me. There's a bomb under you that will go off in exactly three minutes! Get out with your arms over your head. Take your choice. But the gold for us or hell for you. I thought they were bluffing and picked up my gun."

The man whitened. "I don't want you to think I was weak, but have you ever thought that you were going to be blown into little bits?"

"No, it must be most uncomfortable," Ranny said soothingly.

"I watched my second hand on my wrist watch. I never saw anything so arid so fast. Well—I opened the door and crawled out just as they made ready to light the bomb."

"And then?"

"Some one struck me and I went out like a light. When I came to, I was by myself sitting in the dark propped up on a boulder. It was cold and I could hear water dripping. It wasn't long until I saw the light."

It was lightning, and pretty soon I could see that I wasn't far from a road. I hit the filling station soon after and got a ride into Tablahneka.

"Can you find the place again?"

"Yes, easily. I marked it with stones. And—"

The sharp ring of the telephone interrupted. Taylor answered it. It was Knox Randolph, he says to come at once. He's had a message."

Heroism Of Sailors

CBC Correspondent Tells About Sinking Of British Battleships

For the three days following his rescue from the Repulse sinking, CBC correspondent Cecil Brown was so busy writing and broadcasting that he did not have time to shave or to wash off the oil in which he had been immersed for hours. "But throughout that time," he says in his story of the Prince of Wales and Repulse disaster in Liberty magazine, "through the sickness from the oil, the pounding in my ears, and the burning in my eyes, one constant thought kept a choke in my throat. It was the vivid, saddening, proud memory of heroism, determination, stamink, and the way brave men die that more than fulfilled Nelson's great words to his men of the British Navy: 'England expects every man to do his duty!'"

The battle between the great ships and the Japanese lasted for slightly more than an hour, says Brown in the article, and the first Japanese bomb, dropped from 12,000 feet, smashed the catapult deck of the Repulse. Heroism among the men was a commonplace. A twenty-year-old marine, Morris Craney, got Brown onto a crowded raft after he had first saved himself by climbing onto a small table.

"Grueney wore only shorts and his thick chest was covered with oil. His brown hair streaked over his forehead and into his eyes. I think the sight of Grueney helped many a man. He was almost six feet tall, husky, almost barrel-chested. Above a square jaw he had a slim, delicate mustache and blue kind, any eyes. In all the time I saw Grueney I saw only one definable expression on his face—bravery."

Admiral Tom Phillips arrived in Singapore just in time to take the Prince of Wales and Repulse out on their first and last engagement in the Far East. Captain Leach commanded the Wales and, writes Brown, "Phillips and Leach, were last seen standing on the bridge of the Wales, the water rising up to meet them, meeting, and then covering them."

Forbidden In Canada

Feeding Raw Garbage To Pigs In the Far West With Disease

Canada has a regulation which insulates that pigs must not be fed raw garbage. There is no such regulation in the United States. The latter country has about 17 per cent of its population infected with trichinosis, a disease which results from the eating of pork containing live worms. Canada's population has only one per cent suffering from the disease. These were facts adduced in a joint paper by Dr. T. W. M. Cameron and Dr. M. J. Miller delivered before the medical section of the Royal Society of Canada at Toronto.

An Imposing Total

Cleaning Windows On One Manchester House Is Some Job

The abode of a neighbor of mine, writes a Manchester Guardian correspondent, has 26 downstairs windows and 22 upstairs ones. They average 22 small diamond or square panes each. That makes—as he bitterly points out—the nearly consecutive total of 3,456 panes to be cleaned. Each pane has four corners. That makes 13,824 nice little corners to be desmudged periodically. But, alas! a window has two sides. So, outside and in, that quite Old World-looking house has nearly 28,000 pane-corners to be tackled.

Save Old Rags

They Are Desperately Needed For War Purposes

Every woman in every home has a hundred opportunities daily to be a vital cog in the war machine. For instance, the Director of Salvage at Ottawa points to rags. They're desperately needed for war—for wrapping delicately milled parts for airplane wheels on airplanes; in army workshops, and aboard Canadian ships. Homes are the greatest source of supply.

In appealing for rags, as for other materials, the Salvage Director says, "Do the job carefully and thoroughly so the material can be moved to the 'front line' fast."

Save white woollens, colored woollens; coatings and suitings; and cottons. Wrap each class in separate parcels, and, please, don't put clean and soiled rags together. Put old carpets and scrap sackings in separate containers.

Pack in cartons or old sacks and get them to your local salvage organization, or direct to a dealer in your community right away.

The CBC's Overseas Unit is made up of a small group of men from the Programme and Engineering Division of the Corporation who play an important part in keeping the thousands of men and women serving in Britain in close association with their families and friends in Canada. From many points in England this mobile unit arranges, records and presents for listeners in Canada broadcasts describing the life and activities of the soldiers, sailors, airmen, nursing sisters and civilian workers. Of their many duties perhaps one of prime concern and importance to Canadians at home is the arranging of the weekly Troop Broadcasts of personal greetings when men and women step up to the microphone somewhere in England to send their own messages home to Canada. These messages reach Canada in the form of recorded discs or are received direct from Overseas by ing station and then recorded. In the case of messages recorded in England, the name of the men and women who have taken part in the programme are wirelessly to Ottawa and are subsequently checked against the recording when it arrives. In the latter case the record is played over and the names of those who have taken part in the broadcast are listed. It is then that the names of the participants are released to the Canadian Press to appear in the news papers several days before the broadcast is to take place. For the benefit of rural listeners who may not have the opportunity of seeing the published lists the names of the speakers are broadcast as soon as possible after they are received, immediately following the News Analysis at 6:30 p.m. C.D.T. (5:30 p.m. M.D.T.), over Station CBK, Watrous (540 Kc.).

It will be understood why there is sometimes an unavoidable delay of several weeks between the time the broadcast or recording is made in Britain and when it is heard on the Canadian networks.

SELECTED RECIPES

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

With hot weather on the way, it's handy to have a recipe for home-made rolls that can be mixed up and stored in the refrigerator until needed. Happily, these bran beauties take but 15 minutes baking. The recipe goes like this:

- 1 cup All-Bran Refrigerator Rolls
  - 1 cup shortening
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 cup All-Bran
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
  - 1 cup boiling water
  - 2 eggs
  - 2 cakes compressed yeast
  - 1 cup lukewarm water
  - 8 1/2 cups flour, or more
- Put shortening, sugar, All-bran and salt in large mixing bowl, add boiling water, stirring until shortening is melted. Let stand until mixture is lukewarm. Add well-beaten eggs and yeast, softened in lukewarm water. Add one-half the flour and beat until batter is smooth. Add remaining flour and beat well. Cover bowl closely and place in refrigerator overnight or until ready to use. Form balls of dough to fill greased muffin pans about half full. Let rise in a warm place about two hours or until double in bulk. Bake in moderately hot oven (325 degrees F.) about 15 minutes.

Yield: 3 1/2 dozen rolls (2 1/2 inches in diameter).

"NERVES" CAN BE CHANGED INTO ASSETS

Energy Needs Proper Direction

Squabbles in public—no wonder John and Mary can't keep friends. They get on each other's nerves and "blow up" at the most inopportune times. Yet they could be happy together, a charming pair—if they would learn to use their nervous energies constructively.

Instead Mary frets over every trifle—John overbids his hand, the laundry's late. The least thing upsets her emotionally.

What Mary needs is an absorbing interest in her life. If she'd take over the leadership of the girls' club in her neighborhood—she'd soon forget petty annoyances—become cheerful, vital, a pleasant companion. "Speed-up" is John's middle name. It's rush to work, rush through lunch—no wonder his fumes and fuses, blowing up at the least provocation. Learn to let down a little, John. Get enough sleep. Take time to enjoy your meals.

You'd do a better job, be a better "pal" if you and Mary would get out in the air, play games and take walks!

In our 32-page booklet a famous physician tells ways to control "nerves" to achieve serenity and vitality. ## RACE MEET, STAMPEDE, BASEBALL, MIDWAY ATTRACTIONS, KIDDIES RACES, ALL IN ONE DAY

Viking and district's big day, Friday, July 3rd, is but nine days away, and the large posters are now out announcing the various events that will take place. A bigger and better programme all around has been planned, and from all accounts, people from far and near are looking forward to being in Viking on July 3rd.

THE RACE MEET

This year's race meet promises to be by far the best outside the "A" circuit. Every heat is a race, and good purses hung up for each event. There are nine races besides a special feature high jump.

The race track is being put in fine shape. The starting line has been changed to about 100 yards north of the finish line which will give the horses a better straightway and the spectators a chance to see the bangtails in full stride as they whizz past the judges' stand. The race meet is drawing the attention of some of the best horsemen in Alberta and the crowd will be pleasantly surprised when they see the class of horses that will be in action.

THE STAMPEDE EVENTS

Stampede manager Olsenberg assures the sports committee that this year's stampede events will be the roughest, toughest, wildest and wildest that ever came over the pike. Two hundred and twenty-five head of the buckingest broncs and wildest steers that ever roamed the wide open spaces, have been rounded up and are rarin' to shake the daylight out of the best bunch of cowboys that ever rode the ranges. Don't miss seeing "The Bomber," the mystery bronco that has thrown more cowboys than you can shake a stick at. Yes, the stampede will be worth coming miles to see and is worth twice the admission price alone.

ONE GAME OF BASEBALL

The baseball committee scoured the country for baseball teams and finally rounded up teams from Sedgewick and Dodds. Baseball teams are as scarce as hen's teeth and the committee feels fortunate in securing these two senior teams to play a sudden death game commencing at five o'clock. G. T. Loney, who knows his baseball, will be behind the plate to call 'em as he sees 'em, and that's something. This will probably be the only ball game you'll see on the local diamond this year. Both Dodds and Sedgewick are coming loaded, they say, with ball players gathered from the four corners of the globe, including Brooklyn.

MIDWAY SHOWS AND ATTRACTIONS

Midway attractions and shows will be under the auspices of the Viking Elks Lodge, and all the proceeds for community benefit. The Viking Elks Lodge is an up and coming organization and is doing a mighty lot of good for the war effort, local enterprises, and benefits. Get acquainted with the Viking "Brother Bills."

PICTURE SHOW AND DANCE

Keifer Shows were fortunate in securing a recent release, Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette in "Sierra Sue." One show at 8:30 p.m. "Sierra Sue" gives you sports night and all other nights for that matter, so you'll all want to see "Sierra Sue," with Autry and his singing cowboys and cowgirls.

After the picture show, the floor in the Elks Community hall will be cleared for the dance at 10:30. The Viking Jives, playing the latest tunes and some not so late, will be on hand to furnish the music until the wee small hours. The Elks hall has one of the best and most commodious dance floors in this far north. Lots of elbow room for everybody.

ADMISSION TO THE STAMPEDE

The admission price to the stampede and race meet remains the same at last year; 50c for adults; children 16 years and under, free; cars and grandstand free. In recognition of Army Week, men and women of the armed forces in uniform will be admitted free, otherwise everybody pays at the gate, no entry fees, no free admissions. You will see a race meet, stampede, baseball game, and other sports and attractions for one admission, 50c.

There will be ample refreshment booths on the grounds. Residents and business places are asked to decorate with flags, bunting and trees wherever possible. The decoration committee requests everybody to assist and see that the town is in a holiday mood.

As there will be a large number of cars and rigs in town everybody is requested to drive carefully in order to avoid accidents. It's a day when folks from towns and country for miles around will gather to take in and enjoy "the biggest one day stampede and race meet in Alberta." Yippee, let's go.

The net proceeds of the day will be devoted to war charities.

NICHOLAS SCHOESTER

Nicholas Schoester is a native of Holland. Once he thought of settling in Java but the heat drove him back to Holland. He took a ship for Canada then—that was in 1917—and the ship took so long to sight land he thought he was on his way to Java again. Finally he came up the St. Lawrence to Montreal, stayed a while, saw Canada on a harvest excursion, and crossed the United States as a visiting artist. From Halifax, where he has made his home for some time, he conducts his own musical programs on Saturdays at 5:30 p.m. for National Network listeners. There are heard over station CBK, Watrous (540 Kcs.) each week. He is active in curling, golfing and tennis circles, will never pass up a swim in the North-West Arm, winter or summer, and is a member of the Polar Bear Club—no wonder.

Cream shipping cans are exceedingly scarce and farmers should endeavor to protect and conserve the present supplies. This warning, issued long ago by the provincial department of agriculture, was repeated this week when D. H. McCallum, dairy commissioner, stated that only one Canadian factory manufactures them. A quantity of priority steel plate has been received, but no tin is available for coating.

Put little corks on the ends of your knitting needles. This will prevent you hurting yourself as you dive into your knitting bag.

JOHN BURKE-GAFFNEY

A young man who has deliberately set out to equip himself as a trained and experienced general practitioner of radio is John Burke-Gaffney, sound effects operator at CBC's Winnipeg studios.

John, as you might suspect, is of Irish origin, the son of parents who came from Dublin to Winnipeg nearly thirty years ago. He has all the brains, dramatic sense and quick wit of his Irish ancestors, and the pioneering west has endowed him with a capacity for hard work. At twenty he has already been laboring for more than two years at his chosen profession of radio, which he sees as an art and a science requiring dramatic ability, knowledge of music and, above all, technical training. John first entered radio as an actor on CBC casts under producer Charles P. Wright. Sound effects interested him then, and so did the whole technique of radio broadcasting with the result that presently he put acting aside and retired to St. Boniface Industrial school for a heavy course in radio physics. Completing this, he joined the staff of a Winnipeg station as a straight operator—good experience which, however, did not satisfy him. Summer relief as an announcer on another Winnipeg station followed, after which he joined the CBC Sound Effects unit, a development of the corporation's engineering department and the last word in radio technique. The programs John works on in Winnipeg studios can be heard over station CBK, Watrous (540 Kcs.).

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN WORSE

A boat went ashore recently in a storm on Finn Bay, a small inlet seven miles north of Nanaimo on Vancouver Island. The man was a Finnlander, too, as it happened by chance. Also it just happened to be the same storm that broke loose the two observation balloons from Vancouver. The boat dragged its anchor in the night, and was washed up high and dry on the rocks. Funny thing, but it didn't hurt him at all, and he floated off fine and dandy on the next high tide. But—just after this accident had happened to him, and while the light was still poor in the early morning, along comes one of those balloons. He looked up, saw a huge shadowy outline of a monster that looked like nothing else but the form of some gigantic human super man as it dangled its antennae and cables. And, what with the poor visibility, and feeling a bit shaky as he was from his recent harrowing experiences, he said, "I take my head in my hands, and I say to myself, what is my name? Where am I? What do I do here?" Then another gust of wind hit it and carried it beyond the rocks where he was, and he finally got it all figured out straight. But just at first he wondered if he was indeed really seeing things. And he hadn't been to a dance the night before either. Hoping you're the same.

What The Air Waves Are Saying Over Station CJCA

At 9:30 a.m. Monday through Friday, CJCA brings listeners a gripping realistic serial-story of happenings in the life of the wife and family of a young Canadian soldier serving overseas. "Soldier's Wife" is of particular interest to every housewife as it furnishes a realistic source of information on wartime regulations.

Tall, fair-haired and talented Jack Toulson is a busy man these days. Besides filling the arduous and active job of staff pianist at CJCA, Jack also puts his nimble fingers to work teaching others to play in a unique music school which he has founded.

Associated with Jack in his new venture is his wife, Grace Toulson, who also is an accomplished musician besides being the possessor of plenty of personal charm. Together they teach the mysteries of piano-playing, both popular and classical, to a rapidly expanding group of young people and adults. CJCA listeners continually applaud Jack's daily performances with a steady stream of fan mail, and we can't help feeling that if he makes as big an impression as a teacher as he has as a radio personality, Jack will write his own ticket to success.

World of Wheat

by H. G. L. Strange
Director of the Searle Grain Co.

Wheat and Coal

There does not seem to be any relationship between wheat and coal, but actually there is, for large numbers of our wheat growers depend upon coal to heat their farm homes during the winter.

We have all recently been informed by the government that there is a fear of a shortage of coal. I looked into this matter carefully and the more I saw of it the more serious did it appear to me. I concluded that there is almost a certainty that many of the miners who are now available for work in our coal mines may soon leave to join the armed forces, or to take up work in munition factories.

It also seems certain that there will soon be insufficient freight cars to transport coal from the mines to prairie points. Coal miners and freight cars are, however, available now and so my earnest advice to farmers who depend upon coal for heating their homes is to order their coal now without delay and to take delivery of it as quickly as possible.

One year when I was farming we were without coal for our house for two weeks in 15 below zero weather. I certainly would not like to repeat that sad experience.

A. F. U. Notes

The real problems of agriculture that we have to face can only be solved when we are organized into one strong union. A single farmer is no match for the corporations, railroads and business enterprises with which he must deal.

We must build up our strength through a union of farmers. Organized into co-operative organizations the farmers' power would be enormously increased.

When the old age pensioners have a union, and quite rightly so, it's time we woke up. We are endeavoring to have Mr. H. R. Boutilier, of Hairy Hill, address our July meeting. Mr. Boutilier is a charter member of the A.F.U., also has done a lot of organization work. We also expect to have a full report on the poultry marketing board.

The secretary will attend the board meeting in Edmonton on June 25th.

Because of the key position occupied by farmers we feel it is our privilege to organize and be recognized. Come on, let's get busy.

"Food for Victory"
A. G. Bird, Sec'y.

All pie crust is inclined to shrink and should be laid on loosely, bringing it well over the sides of the plate.

BUILDING COSTS

The new budget is before the people of Canada. It calls for a greater effort on the part of our people to do their very best to help win this war. Our government has asked us to pay more, but a big portion of what we pay will be regarded as savings to be returned to us when peace has been won. Now is the time to put what capital you have into proper housing for your stock and poultry. Hen house, hog houses, cattle barns and sheds. All of these are war essentials and take priority over even the clothes we wear. Our fighting forces must have food. Building materials are at their lowest price levels now.

Fifty-two students graduated from the Camrose Lutheran college last Friday evening. Appropriate graduation exercises were held in the Camrose Lutheran church which was crowded for the occasion. Mr. Chester Ronning, principal of the college, presented the diplomas.

Those from Viking and district who received their diplomas were Miss Francis Jessie Child, Miss Ardis Lorraine Hartman from the academic department, Miss Stella Olive Hafez, and Mr. Leslie Peterson from the commercial department.

Twelve grandmothers were entertained when the Women's Institute met Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Maxwell was winner of the grandmother's prize.

A duet by Mrs. Comisarow and Mrs. Lefarud was greatly enjoyed, also two delightful numbers by Mrs. Comisarow, Lorraine Brown, Thelma Phillips and Marie Kastor kept perfect time in the military tap dance, and Verna Hardy and Lorraine looked stunning in their old fashioned costumes when they danced and sang the "Second Minuet." Mrs. Meredith gave two humorous readings and Mrs. Gillespie played for the community singing.

Mrs. Howells will represent Viking W.I. at the constituency conference to be held in Irma June 25th.

On the afternoon of Friday June 19, in the Elks hall, the girls of the Viking intermediate and high school under the direction of Miss I. Robinson, presented a fashion show and handwork exhibition, modelling the clothes made in the home economics classes during the past school year.

The girls showed a great deal of ability in making and modelling their own clothes and the presentation was greatly enjoyed by a large number of appreciative mothers and other guests.

At the end of the demonstration the girls served a delightful lunch of fruit-punch and cookies, demonstrating their culinary ability as well as their creative ingenuity.

The shop work done by the school was a very commendable display. Some of the boys spent a good deal of time in completing their projects and all of them have learned a good deal this past year. However, it was felt that more interest could be, and should be, shown by more parents and interested friends in these school displays. The woodwork was well finished and showed many weeks of careful planning. There was an interesting display of model aircraft. Each tiny plane was in direct ratio to the original and they were realistically suspended from the ceiling. Just as important were the various repair jobs. From soldering a cream can to gluing a dining-room chair, all showed excellent ingenuity and solid repair work. The shop display was worth seeing.

Finally, there was a very excellent display of the art books of the art I class of the high school. The students had put a great deal of time on these folios and the work in them was very commendable. These books showed that they had planned their work very carefully and was a display which was viewed with keen interest.

Those who took occasion to visit the primary room where Mrs. Clark teaches grades 1, 2 and 3, received a pleasant greeting. The work in penmanship, drawing, and general knowledge of every day events was surprising. Mrs. Clark does not overlook the importance of imparting patriotism and love of country into the young minds.

Publicity For Canada

FOR SOME TIME in has been felt by many Canadians that too little is known about Canada in other lands. This has been notable, especially in England and the United States, where the Canadian visitor has on occasion encountered what is to him an amazing and appalling lack of knowledge about our country. In the past we have met this situation with tolerance and some amusement, but there has always been, too, the suggestion of a slight to our national pride. It has been realized, however, that this lack of knowledge about Canada by many who live beyond her borders, is not due to lack of interest on their part, but to our failure to publicize our country.

Need Wider Information

In recent months, this question has been considered more seriously than at any time, because of a misapprehension that has sprung up in the United States regarding Canada's war effort. Many American news writers who are appraised of both sides of the situation have been urging Canadians to increase their organization for publicity in the States. Many Canadian newspapers have likewise been stressing the need for a wider service for information below the border. To deal with the problem the Dominion government recently appointed Mr. Charles Vining, a Montreal newspaper man, to make a survey of Canadian publicity in the United States and to report to the government on his findings. Doubtless this will result in an expansion of our news services in the United States, and in the promotion of a better understanding there of what Canada is doing in the present world struggle.

We Should Be Realists

Canada is still a young nation. We have a magnificent country, rich in natural resources and scenic beauties. Many of our resources are developed and are the sources of large and modern industrial enterprises. Our agriculture is on a scale sufficient to supply our own needs and those of many other parts of the world. At present both our industry and agriculture are playing an enormous part in sustaining England in these critical times. Because we are still a young nation we have not yet found a strong means of national expression. We have few national newspapers or magazines with a large international circulation. In the years following the war there will be great problems to be settled and Canada will be represented at the council tables with the other United Nations. It is strongly felt by many thoughtful Canadians that before that time we must not only fully realize our importance as a nation, but spread that knowledge through the nations at whose sides we are fighting.

Commando Raids

Vice-Admiral Lord Mountbatten Discloses Some Inside History
How Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, commander of the German African army, escaped a commando raid but lost his entire general staff was told by the dark-haired commander of the fabulous commandos, Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten. It happened the night before the British offensive in the last Libyan campaign. A commando party worked its way over the desert, behind the German lines, until it came to Rommel's base.

The place was captured easily and everyone inside killed or captured but Rommel was not there—he was in Rome attending a birthday celebration.

Lord Louis told how two young British commando officers calmly stood on the forecastle head of the explosive-laden destroyer Campbellton in St. Nazaire harbor, blandly assuring 50 to 100 German technical experts that all was well until the ship blew up and carried everyone to death. The raid on St. Nazaire was made March 28.

"Those two boys stayed there and never batted an eye," said their commander. "They had guts."

The youthful commander of the commandos—he is only 43 but he has seen much naval service in this war and the last one—stressed the teamwork of his combined forces of sailors, soldiers, airmen and marines. It is becoming a regular Allied force because American officers now are attached to his staff and four commandos are coming to the United States for instructional purposes.

Wear Caps Now

Bank Messengers in Britain Have Discarded Tall Silk Hats
The tall silk hat, that traditional headgear of Britain's bank messengers, is the latest victim of war conditions. An announcement said the topper is being exchanged for "a plebeian, but more serviceable cap." "Bank messengers carry steel helmets, and if there should be need to use them it would be rather difficult to pack a topper away," an official of Lloyd's Bank explained. "Then there's the matter of economizing in the use of materials."

Factory Made Cricket Bats But Now Makes Rifle Stocks

A North of England factory which used to make cricket bats has now turned over to producing butts and stocks for Tommy guns and rifles, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal.

It occurred to its manager when war broke out that his machines could be adapted for making the wooden "furniture" of guns. The suggestion was pooh-poohed at first, but he won the day and got his contract.

Today the machines which three years ago were turning out cricket bats are shaping four slabs of wood into four rifle butts in as many minutes. Other machines complete the 92 processes which are necessary before the butts and stocks go into the ammonia chamber to mellow. They are then treated with linseed oil.

The craftsmen who made the cricket bats maintain that today, out of a pile of other rifles, a seasoned war veteran will still choose their work for its "feel."

Ownership Transferred

Britain Has Given Island Of Patos To Venezuela

Patos (Spanish for ducks) Island, a 170-acre dot in the Caribbean, three miles off Venezuela, used to be one of the tiniest bits of the British Empire. The Foreign Office kept a retired Negro policeman from nearby Trinidad there as caretaker. All he had to do was run up the Union Jack daily. His family and his goats were the sole inhabitants. There weren't even ducks.

Britain originally claimed the islet under the 1802 Treaty of Amiens which gave it Trinidad. But since 1904 Venezuela has disputed its ownership, and the squabble threatened the otherwise friendly relations between the nations.

On May 21 Britain did the noble thing. King George signed a bill ceding Patos to Venezuela free of charge.—Newsweek.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In The Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Well, we got it at last! A touch of total war in our own front yard! Freighters torpedoed in the St. Lawrence! I know the news is stale, but since I know that broad catenary as well as most of us know Main Street or Broadway you might be interested in a few remarks on the subject.

Naturally, since the question of security enters into it, I shall not attempt to speculate as to where the attacks took place although, judging by the hour at which the attacks were made and the reported time of the landings of survivors at various little ports it is not too hard for an ex-ship-news reporter to figure out within fifty miles or so.

What is most important, now that the sneaking underwater hounds have at last gathered their courage to the point of risking their lives in confined waters, is the steps to be taken by members of the Individual Citizen's Army.

There is no need to worry about the steps that are being taken by the Canadian Navy. It was immediately announced that long-prepared plans were at once put into effect.

Remember a few days after the little yellow apes attacked Pearl Harbour? They shelled the California coast. That was done from a submarine.

It can happen here! Not beyond the bounds of possibility are landings at obscure spots in the dead of night for water and food or diesel oil.

This is why a recruiting campaign is going on for the Reserve Army. Married men in the acceptable age group and married and single men whose categories unfit them for overseas service are needed to form a Home Guard.

There may be work for a home guard much sooner than we completely anticipate. The six long miles of shore-line on both sides of the estuary in which scattered farm houses are the only signs of habitation. But the men and women who live in these picturesque white houses are of a sturdy stock that stems back to the hardy Frenchmen who wrested Canada from the redskins and the territory against savages who would be appalled at the savagery displayed today by the "kultured" Nazis.

Even if there are submarines in the St. Lawrence we cannot all play the role of Madeleine de Vercheres. We cannot all join the Reserve Army, but we can all play our parts by doing everything possible in our daily lives to conserve every resource for wartime production.

From the little port that harbours the pilot tender to its mouth the mighty St. Lawrence River takes on almost the proportions of an inland sea. Heavily wooded country abounds with wild life back to the settled fringe along the shores. It is tempting country to brutalized men who have been cooped up for weeks in the fetid atmosphere of a submarine.

Wild life, moose, deer, smaller game, are very tempting to men who have been living on German naval rations. They may be tempted to try a little hunting. And it may be too bad for them. Have you ever faced a conscientious Game Warden?

The farmers of the lower St. Lawrence are an amphibious people equally at home between the handles of a plough or a pair of oars, in a gasoline tractor or a fishing launch capable of riding the heavy seas for which the great river is noted. They will give a good account of themselves if they get the chance.

They are used to making a living the hard way in a year round contest with the elements and will be just as equal to protecting that living when the occasion arises.

But they won't be able to do it alone! They will need, and must have, every other Canadian standing behind them. They will need the Royal Canadian Navy—which so many of their sons have joined. And that Navy needs heavy clothes, warm food, rubber boots, depth charges, ammunition.

You've guessed it! That's where the Individual Citizen's Army enters the picture again. To give the Navy its woollen sweaters, its heavy socks to wear under sea-boots, its hot cocoa-sweetened energy—its depth charges, we

ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

CHAPTER XXV.

"Miss Tamar Randolph Kidnapped," the headlines were in startling black, repeated over every major paper of the South the next morning.

With the exception of the green suede glove found at the scene of the junction of the Cricket Hill Road, there were no clues. Other headlines played up prominently in the same paper were the holdup of the armored truck and robbery of the gold bars from the amalgamation mill at the mine.

Ransome Todd and Knox Randolph paced the verandah. On the terrace stood groups of newspaper men talking in low tones. Police guarded the entrance of the lane and strode around the big sprawling white house. Phoebe and Aristotle moved silently about in the kitchen. Excepting for coffee, none of the breakfast had been touched.

Ransome's face was chalk white, and Tamar's father looked as though he were on the verge of collapse. Neither had made any attempt to lie down during the night. They had been in council with Taylor and Ransome, and Aristotle moved silently about in the kitchen. Excepting for coffee, none of the breakfast had been touched.

Ransome's face was chalk white, and Tamar's father looked as though he were on the verge of collapse. Neither had made any attempt to lie down during the night. They had been in council with Taylor and Ransome, and Aristotle moved silently about in the kitchen. Excepting for coffee, none of the breakfast had been touched.

It was almost dark when Ranny drove into the weed-grown track of the little rutted road that led into the picnic grounds of Whiffle Creek where the old mill stood. As he followed the road, he could see the lovely face of Tamar beside him, and feel her presence as of the day they had spent there. He felt numb, as though all life had stopped and that living would never again be possible, until she returned safely.

Ranny could see that nothing about the place had the appearance of having been recently visited. He sprang out of the car, followed by a policeman and Knox Randolph. Recent rain had washed the old deck clean of all the old tracks, and he noticed there were no new ones. He opened the creaky door cautiously. The gloomy weather was silent and empty.

The policeman ran his big flash over the place, and the beam picked out the walls alone. The crude furniture had been removed and the room was barren.

"Taylor has had this place watched!" Ransome exclaimed. "When could the furniture have been removed?"

"Maybe it's another part of the old mill," suggested the officer.

But a hasty examination proved that nothing was in the storage rooms that mine and the rotting boards testified that no one could have safely used them.

They had gone back then to Shadowwell. It was almost dark when they reached the place, and Ranny noted again the darkies down by the old slave quarters, huddled as they were the day of Maris' death. This agony of suspense was heart-breaking, not knowing that Tamar was safe, or even alive was torture to Ranny.

All night they had listened to stories of different employees of the Cricket Hill.

Major Towne was so bewildered over Tamar's disappearance that even Ransome believed that he knew nothing of her whereabouts. He brought Marigold Fettes and her father to Shadowwell, there to confront the Major with her story, and to repeat to the Major the story that Fettes himself had given him about the test ore that was taken out of the mine in February.

As he strode about on the wide porch this morning Ranny remembered how well Towne had played his cards last night. He spoke so convincingly that even Ransome wondered how he could lie so expertly. It was with satisfaction that he saw Towne and Fettes both taken away to be held for questioning.

Phoebe appeared in the doorway. "Miss Ranny!" she called.

Ranny did not hear her, he was so deep in his thoughts. He felt the tug of his arm and finally looked up. "Yes, Phoebe?"

"Miss Ranny, honey, why don't you call dat Miss Sande on de phone and talk wif her? If'n he in love wif Miss Tamar lak ah think he is, he may fin' out sumpin' fo' yo'."

Ransome Todd stopped in his tracks. Why hadn't he thought of this? "He's Dick heard anything?"

"He's Dick heard anything?" The note in Randolph's voice had a piteous plea.

"No. And he's all broken up over it, too."

On sudden inspiration Ranny ran up the stairs to Dick's office. "Do you know anything about that engineer, Dick?" he burst into the room.

Dick whirled away from the window where he had been observing a cold world outside. He looked worn. "You mean Sande? No, Ran, I don't know anything about him. Would Selby? I'll call her."

He picked up the telephone and gave the number.

"Wait—yes, yes, central. Yes, he's here. What is it?"

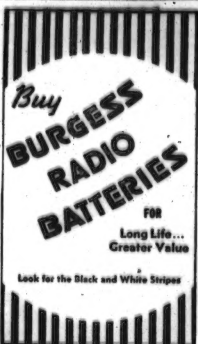

Ransome discursively pulled the telephone out of Dick's hand. "What is it?" he shouted hoarsely.

In a few minutes Ransome, Dick and Knox Randolph were roaring out of town. Dick had not waited to be invited but had followed Ransome down the stairs. He grabbed Knox's arm and without a word they piled into the car.

"What is it?" Dick shouted as they skidded around a bend.

"Some farmer out on the Duck Point road called to say he saw an airplane leave the field south of his place yesterday afternoon about five. He didn't know that any had landed there, and was suspicious. He just heard about Tamar and the hold-up, and thought there might be some connection."

If Tamar had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom, her father kept thinking as they sped along, why hadn't there been a message demanding money?

the employees at the mine. I don't know anything about him and I won't give you any information concerning where he might be."

Ransome said: "You've heard of lynchings, haven't you? We seem like a pleasant little town here in Tahlanke. Outside this building stand a group of 50 men which would grow to a hundred in five minutes. I might just possibly let them take you, Major."

Major Towne's face grew livid. "I'm going to sue you for having me held, Todd."

Randolph's face hardened. "Major Towne, if you can give us any light on the disappearance of my daughter, I advise you not to withhold it any longer. Certain things are going to come to light at the trial that had for you. Kidnapping is a Federal offense you understand."

"I've had nothing to do with your daughter's disappearance. Why didn't she stay at home instead of galivanting over the country on that mare?"

"You know, then, about the mare?"

The Major stared at Ransome. "I don't know anything." He closed his lips firmly and refused to reopen them.

In another moment Ransome and Randolph turned away and hurried out of the gloomy place that housed the jail. It was an annex to the courthouse and could be reached only through the main corridor of the building.

"I'll go to my office for a moment and see if any message has come in there. Want to come along with me?" Ransome asked the older man.

He studied his face. Randolph looked broken with the strain of the night.

As they entered the bank building they heard a step at the top of the stairs. It was Dr. Forrester. He called to the men. "Wait, Ransome. Hello, Knox. I just came up to see if Dick had heard anything."

"He's Dick heard anything?" The note in Randolph's voice had a piteous plea.

"No. And he's all broken up over it, too."

On sudden inspiration Ranny ran up the stairs to Dick's office. "Do you know anything about that engineer, Dick?" he burst into the room.

STILL A STRONG POWER

France's streamlined army of 350,000 troops at home and in the colonies, 1,000 frontline fighting planes, across a navy of 90 surface warships and about 60 submarines make her still the fourth strongest power on the European continent despite the clipping of her wings by the 1940 armistice.

Had Fun Anyway

Artist Holds Exhibition Of Work Rejected By Royal Academy

This year's Royal Academy exhibition—the 174th—was the same old story for painter Albert Perry. His paintings he submitted, just as religiously as some 90 others during the past 31 years, were rejected.

Not the least perturbed, Perry held his own exhibition. It attracted even more attention than his private exhibition last year when students walked the streets with Perry paintings displayed on back and front of sandwich boards.

This time the artist's collection of rejects hung from the sides of a horse-drawn cart. Perry himself, burly, white-haired and smiling, was high on the driver's seat. Two girl students, in the back of the cart, held up paintings for all to see.

"That is fun," exclaimed the artist between shouted "giddaps." The president of the academy has been invited to our little show."

As the cart rolled through crowded Piccadilly Circus, Perry wondered unnecessarily if the head of the academy would show up, flicked the horse with the end of the reins and told of plans for his next year's show.

There'll be a big procession exhibition work by artists whose paintings have been rejected by the academy over the past 20 years," he said. "There'll be sculpture. No artist whose work has been accepted will be eligible."

Perry, whose claim of a record number of rejections is disputed by C. B. Coro, retired Dulwich builder, says he asked the academy to settle the argument.

Influence For Good

Nothing In History Compares With That Of British Empire

It deserves to be said that in the history of the world there has never been an influence for good to compare with that of the British Empire. Four nations—Canadian, Australian, New Zealand and South African—bear witness to the fact that it is built on a foundation of freedom. Wherever there have been subject races, as in India, they have benefited by British protection and British administration, while being led as fast as possible along the road to self-government. And ever since there was an Empire, it has been a mark of freedom against tyranny. The part it is playing in this war is merely a continuation of the part it played in the last.

The glory of Britain and of the Empire is to be learned in the attacks of their critics. In the years before the war Britain was blamed for not stopping aggressors wherever they appeared. Nobody thought of suggesting that the United States, or Russia, should stop Japan, or Mussolini, or Hitler. That was always held to be Britain's job, for the reason that people had been so much accustomed to seeing her defend freedom that they thought she should do it at every turn and in all circumstances. And when the time came, true to her tradition, she stepped into the breach. It was the British Empire that led the free nations against the Nazis, and it was the British Empire that broke Hitler's hope of conquering the world. Citizens of the Empire may always recall that with pride on Empire Day—Toronto Evening Telegram.

More Sheep Needed

Government Will Lend Assistance To Increase Sheep Production

Dominion government assistance in provincial government programs to increase sheep production was announced by the agriculture department.

The Dominion plan provides for payment of freight charges on the movement of female breeding stock and for loan ramps to farmers starting to raise new flocks.

During the period Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, 1942, freight charges will be paid by the agricultural supplies board from points of origin to distribution points on ewes or ewe lambs purchased for breeding.

These payments will apply on complete carload lots when shipped in double-deck cars if originating in the prairie provinces and shipped to distribution points east of Fort William or British Columbia.

Payments will also be allowed on less than carload lots for local distribution at points not more than 200 miles from the point of origin.

EAT SMALL OBJECTS

Only the whale is larger mouth than the hippopotamus, yet both these animals devour only small objects. The hippo eats reeds and river grasses, while the whale feeds on small crustaceans.

Statue Of Paul Bunyan

Is Being Carved From Sequoia Log By California Artist

An artist on the grand scale is sculptor Carrol Barnes, of Visalia, Calif., who is carving from a 25-ton Sequoia log a wood carving of the fabulous Paul Bunyan. The statue, which is slowly taking shape under his axe and chisel, will be, he believes, the largest ever carved from a single piece of wood. The monumental figure is at Three Rivers, in the foothills near the entrance to Sequoia National Park. The statue is about 20 feet tall.

HOME SERVICE

LOVELY WEDDING NEED NOT BE EXPENSIVE

Plan in Advance

Although the war forbids extravagance, you can have a lovely wedding. It doesn't take money. The important thing is to know what's correct. "Such a beautiful wedding!" They will say of yours—if you plan it right—whether formal or informal. The formal bride looks lovely in her bridal gown and veil, but you may look lovely, too, marrying informally in suit and hat.

The groom's clothes are in key—cutaway and striped trousers for a formal afternoon wedding or business clothes for an informal one.

On the bride's budget will be invitations, refreshments, music and expenses at the church. The groom's will include the license and the ring, the fee for the clergyman.

Our 32-page booklet explains all the etiquette of expenses, describes every detail of correct formal and informal wedding dress for bride, groom, attendants and guests. Tells etiquette for ceremony and reception.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Planning and Budgeting Your Wedding" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

AGRICULTURE MARCHES WITH OUR ARMED FORCES

Behind the lines where men and women are risking life to defend home and country, other men and women are toiling to supply the materials of war—ships, planes, tanks, guns. These manufacturers—management and workers alike—are thus fighting shoulder to shoulder with our armed forces.

But what about the farmers? They are doing a work of equal importance. They too are marching to battle, by toiling early and late to persuade nature to increase food and other essential supplies on which the issues of the fight so greatly depend. The farmer marches side by side with the soldier and his armourer.

Farmers who are doing their bit to help Canada's all-out war effort may find it necessary to borrow money at the Bank. You should not hesitate to discuss your requirements with our nearest branch manager. Your business will be regarded as strictly confidential.

GOD MADE THE NURSE

He made her heart—brave, true and kind,
And like the mountain streams—her mind,
As crystal pure, yet swift and deep
As where the waters rush and sleep.
Her hands He made—firm, tender, skilled,
Their touch with His own pity filled;
And gave to make His nurse complete,
A sense of humor, wholesome, sweet.
God made the nurse. Thank God.

Red Cross Notes

Although not as big a day as last year, the ladies of the Red Cross were very pleased with the results of the "Eats" booth at the Board of Trade Sports. The pies were delicious and a hearty vote of thanks goes to all the kind friends who so willingly helped, not only for the pies, but for cream, butter, doughnuts and all that went to make it the success it was.

ATTENTION KNITTERS

Did you know the yarn for knitting has been moved to the Legion hall, and can be had at any time by asking Mrs. McFarland, Mrs. Fletcher or phoning Mrs. Carter. We realize you are all very busy but every little bit helps and the organization is very grateful for any effort on this work, whether large or small.

COAL FOR NEXT WINTER

The government informs us that many coal miners may soon leave for the armed forces and for industrial plants making war munitions, in which event, of course, these miners will not be available to dig coal this coming fall and winter, and so there would be a shortage of coal for Canadian civilian use. It is possible, too, the government informs us, that there may be insufficient freight cars to transport coal this coming fall and winter because these cars will probably be employed on vital and essential war work. Our coal miners, however, and these freight cars, are actually available now this summer, both to dig coal and to transport it. Those people, therefore, who wish to be absolutely assured of a supply of coal for this coming winter are urged by the government to order their next winter's supply of coal now and to take delivery as quickly as possible while freight cars are still available. Those who fail to order their coal now and to take delivery of it may run the risk of having no coal for their furnaces, hence no heat in their homes, during this coming winter. A word to the wise no doubt is sufficient.

VIKING ITEMS

Squadron Leader C. C. Sparling of the No. 4 Air Command at Calgary was in town on Monday and conferred with the local committee and officers of the Malta Sqdn. Air Cadet League of Canada. Problems that concern the air cadet movement were discussed. The Squadron Leader stressed the importance the air cadet league has assumed throughout the dominion and congratulated the local committee and instructors on the work that is being done here.

A new thoroughbred racing horse arrived Thursday evening which will be added to the Darrach racing stable in about three years. A colt was born to "Verna Loan" and is sired by "Amsterdam," two thoroughbreds that have good records on the best tracks in North America. The colt has been christened "Victory Loan" and that should make it a winner in any company.

Mrs. J. A. Horton and Mrs. Thunell were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Stock at Wetaskiwin, and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. F. Cary at Camrose during the week-end. They also attended the graduation exercises at the Camrose Lutheran College Friday evening.

S. C. Miller, representing the Continental Oil Co. of Denver, Colorado, made a tour of the Kinsella and Viking gas fields last Thursday, together with G. W. Green, field superintendent.

Miss Alice Swift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Swift, graduated as a nurse with a class of eight, from the Vegreville hospital on June 11th.

If you can't have a full holiday this year, take a half-holiday and attend the big doings at Viking on July 3rd.

Showers during the week have improved the moisture condition wonderfully.

"Rod" McBride, of the R.C.A.F., arrived home on Sunday to spend a leave with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. McBride. "Rod" took the air lines from Toronto, and was met in Edmonton by his father who motored to the city to meet him.

SPORTS

(By Walter Marlow)

The New York Yankees of the American League, and Brooklyn Dodgers of the National, are still the two top teams in their leagues. The Dodgers are away out in front followed by the St. Louis Cardinals. For the past week the Yankees have been in a losing slump but are expected to come out of that in a short time. They are followed by the Boston Red Sox who have Ted Williams clouting them over the fence for them.

Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the world, won't be able to get another fight till about September. He's in the army now, and they want him fighting for them and nobody else. It's expected that he will oppose Billy Conn, who is also in the army. The two will meet in an army relief bout that should draw a tremendous crowd and gate. Conn is the only man that ever came really close to taking the title, the fight being in June of 1941. He lasted 13 rounds and appeared to have the fight all his own way, winning 8 of the thirteen rounds, and got himself knocked out in the 15th.
